Chapter 17

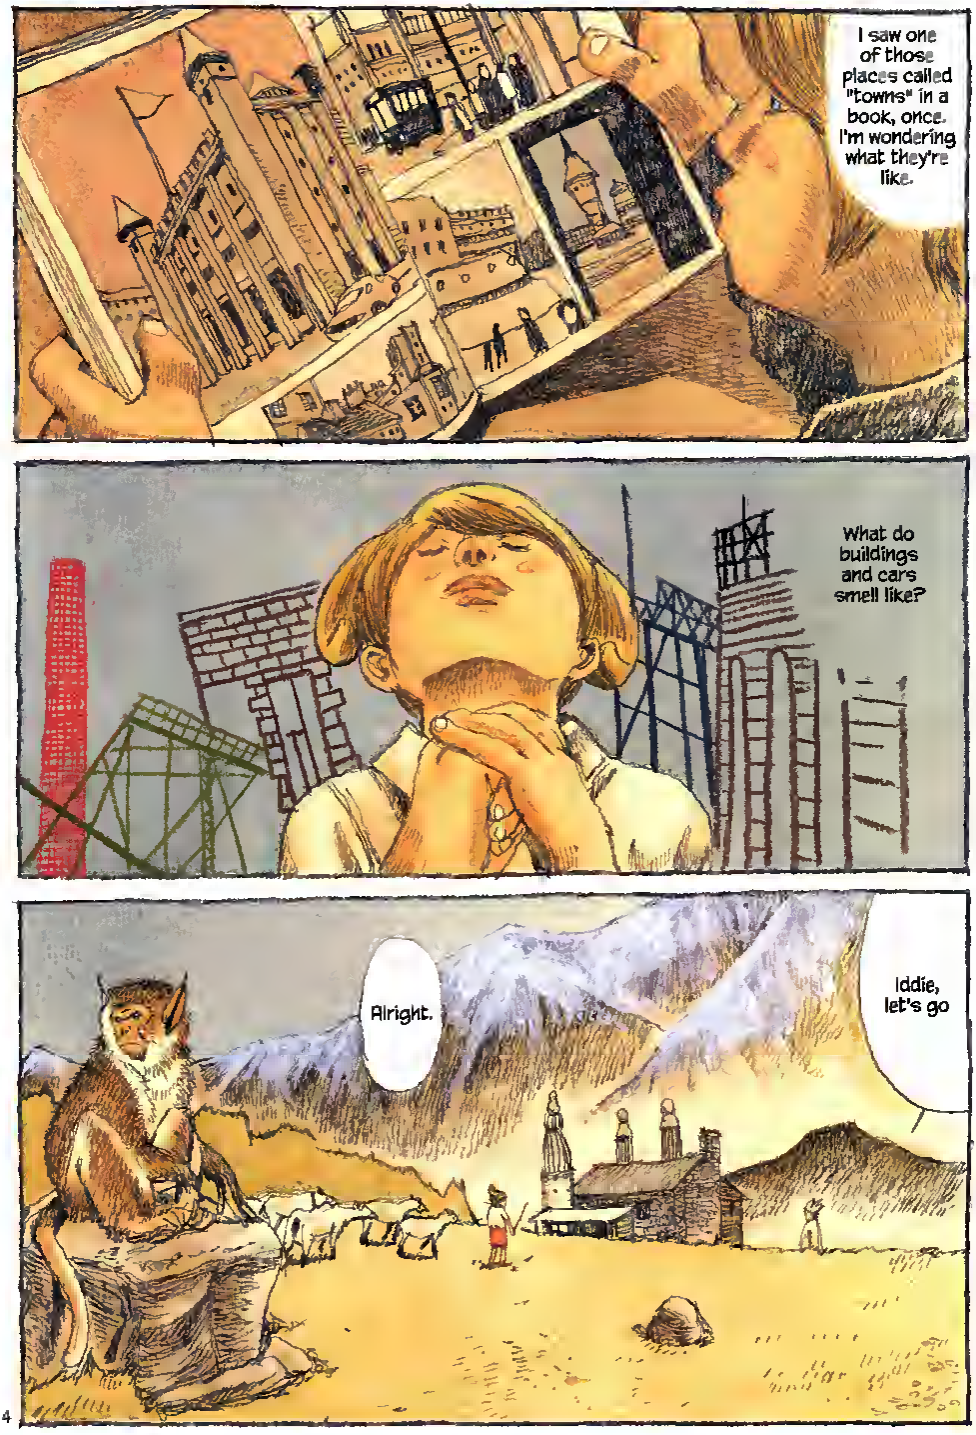
How do bees know that flowers have nectar in them?
As the shepherd takes his herd down somewhere they can graze, you can tell spring is here.
Who taught birds how to fly?
What is there on the other side of this mountain?



I saw one of those places called "towns" in a book, once. I'm wondering what they're like.
What do buildings and cars smell like?
Alright.
Iddie, let's go

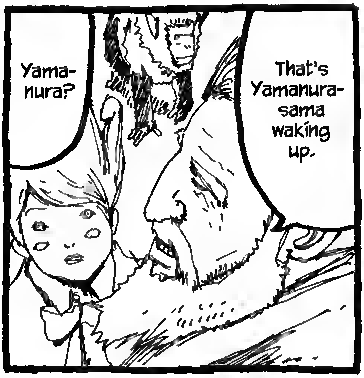
spring comes to these parts.
Nura-sama breathes the same air as us. When his respiration comes to a yawn...



Yama-nura?
That's Yamanura-sama waking up.

The wind is getting stronger, grandpa.

Welcome back.
What are you doing?
I was merely fixing it.
It was covered in dust.
What are you doing, I asked.
That gun ought to be in the barn.

I'm making it good as new.

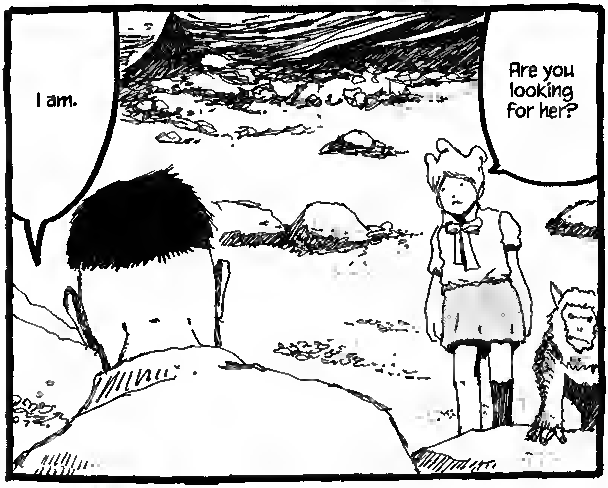
They're beautiful.
Hum-ph.
To the desert?
I've been nearly everywhere on the planet.
Yes I did.
Echink
Did you also take to the sea?
A pretty one?
I had a woman with me.
Clank
Did you travel alone?
Very pretty.

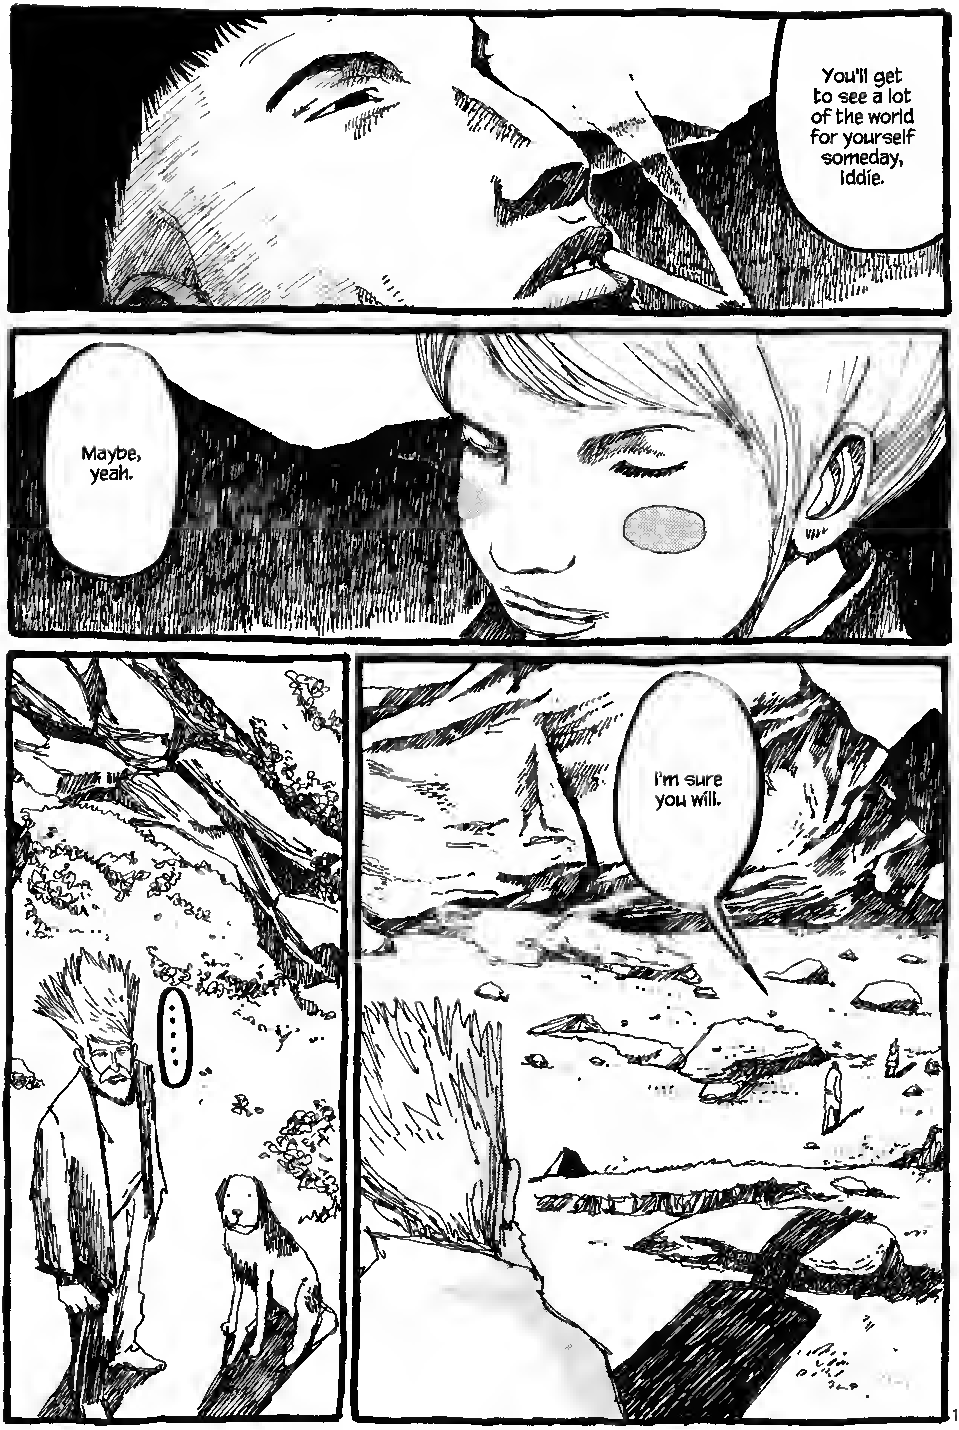
Nope.
She still lives.
Is she dead?



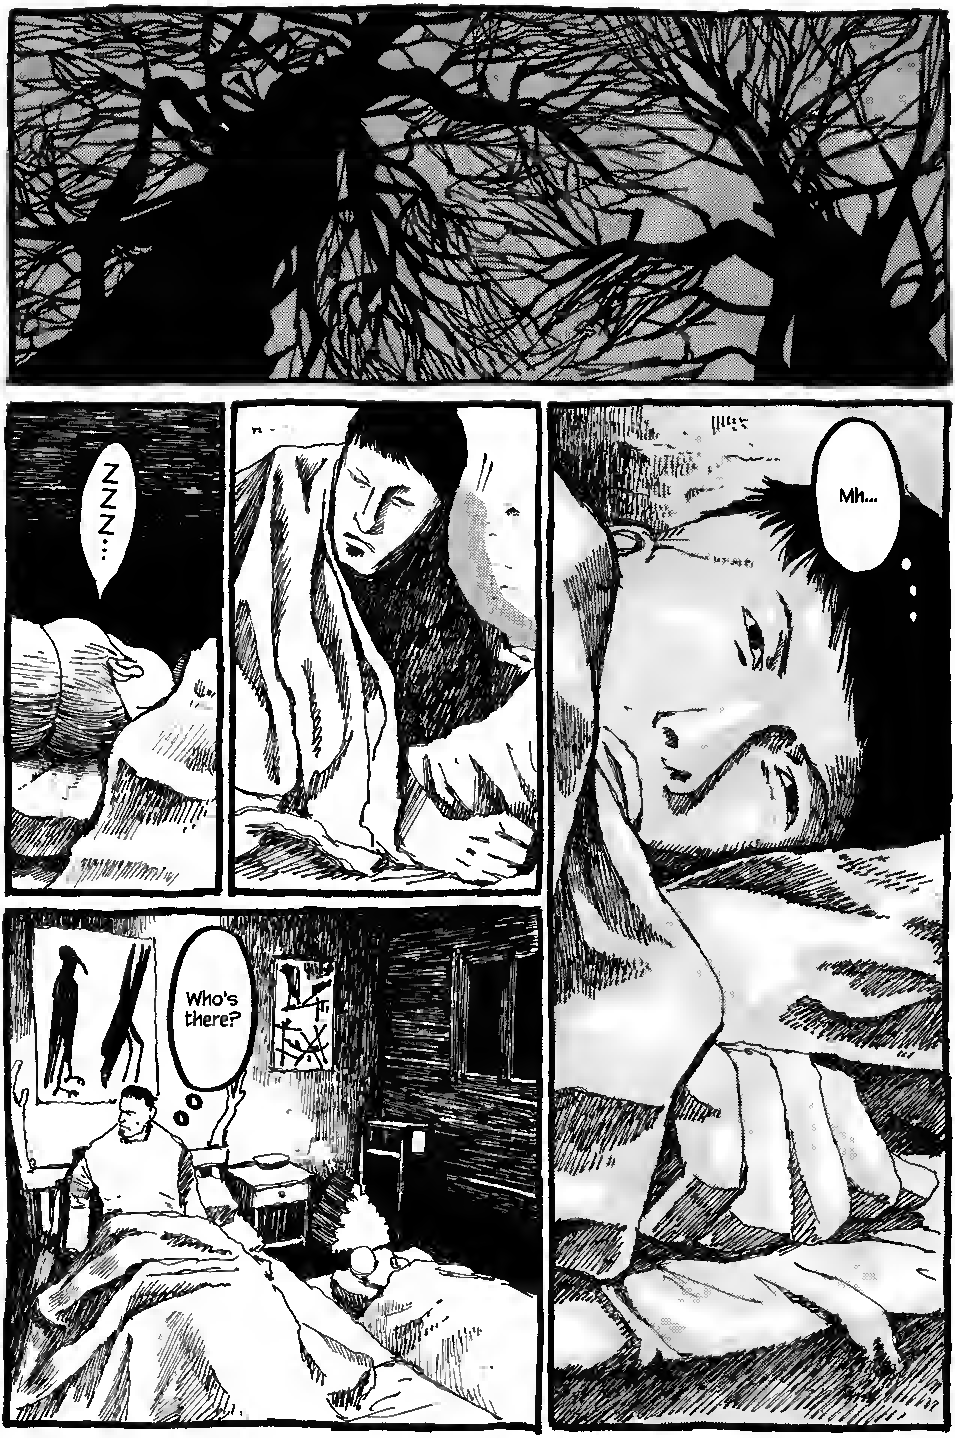
I am.
Are you looking for her?

I'll go to the ends of the Earth if I have to.

But she's been taken by somebody else.



You'll get to see a lot of the world for yourself someday, Iddie.
Maybe, yeah.
....
I'm sure you will.



ZZZ...
Mh...
Who's there?

...
Over there.
Uh-huh.
Did I wake you?
Offering Birds.
They come from the South around this time of the year, bringing spring with them.
Terrific. Are these clouds?
Wooow.
Birds?

Clouds?

I know of everything that happens around here.
ZZZ…
Whatever occurs outside these parts is beyond my knowledge.

Shoo, shoo.
Alright, come on.

Instead of looking, come help me.
Pretty neat job, really.
You're quite something, Iddie.

That'd be grandpa.
He's advancing pretty far in.

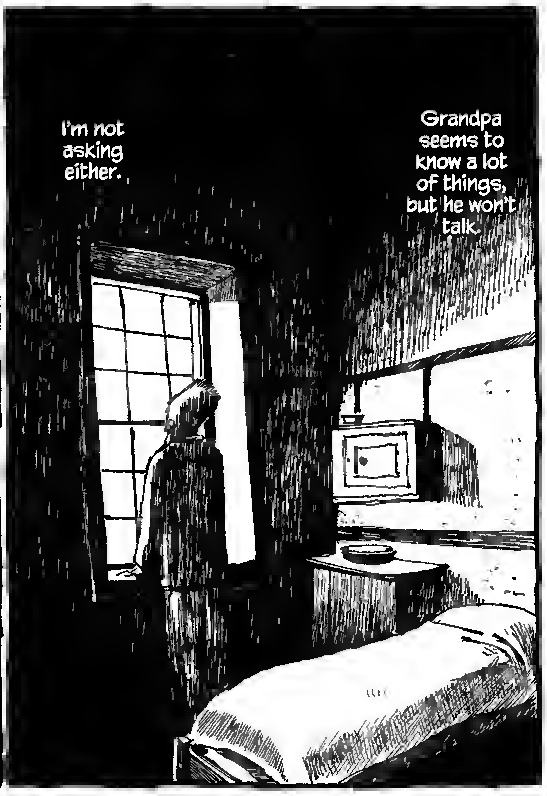
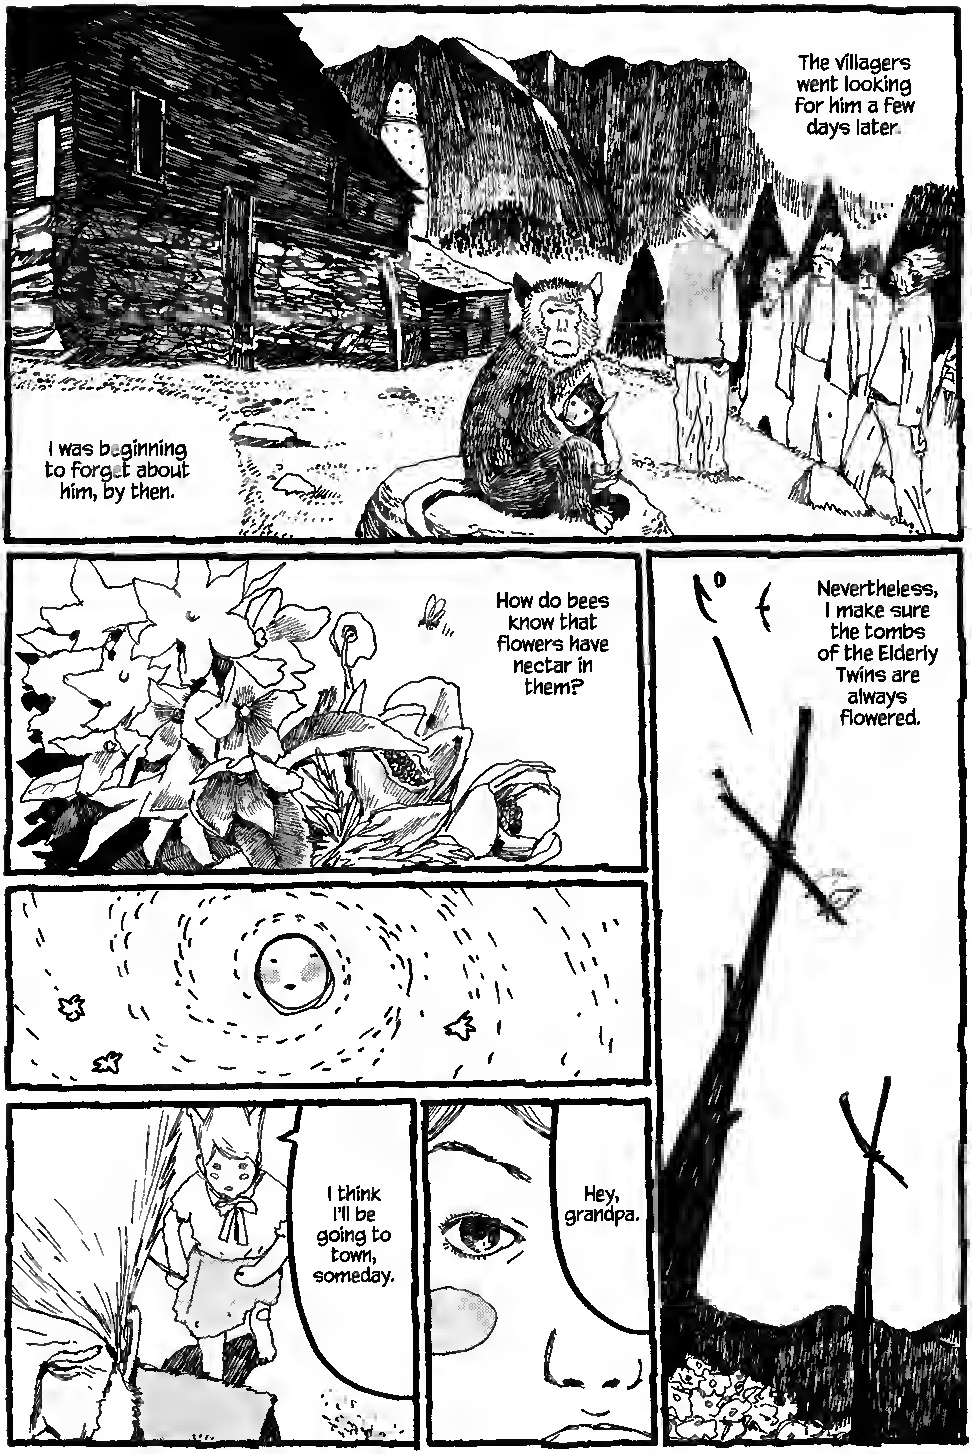
The next day, Yuri was gone.

I think Yuri probably went to the end of the Earth, looking for his lover.



I'm not asking either.
Grandpa seems to know a lot of things, but he won't talk.



The villagers went looking for him a few days later.
I was beginning to forget about him, by then.
How do bees know that flowers have nectar in them?
Nevertheless, I make sure the tombs of the Elderly Twins are always flowered.
I think I'll be going to town, someday.
Hey, grandpa.

Helmet: Disaster/Three Arm: Twilight Model

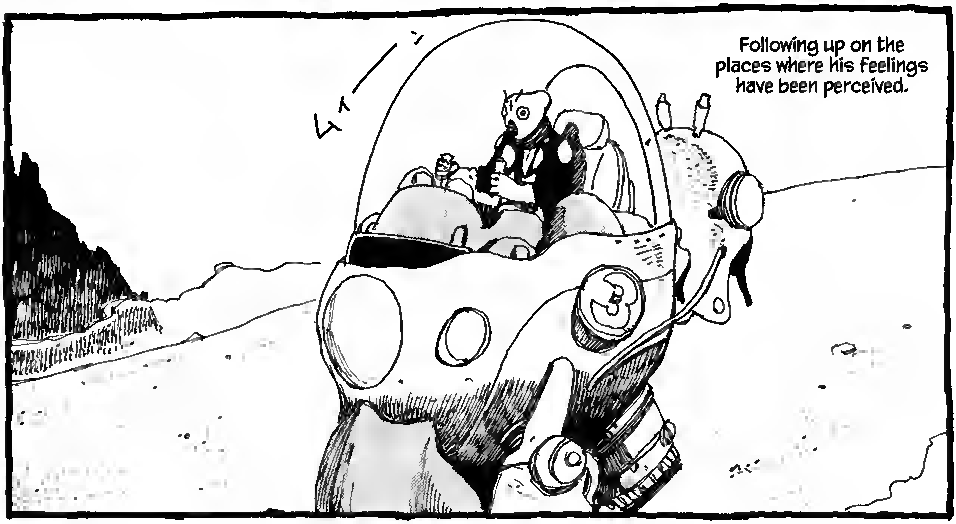
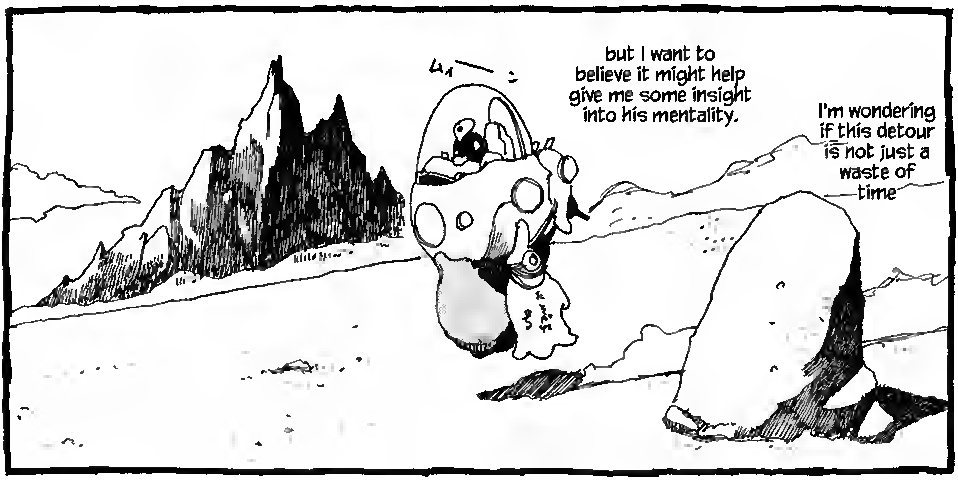
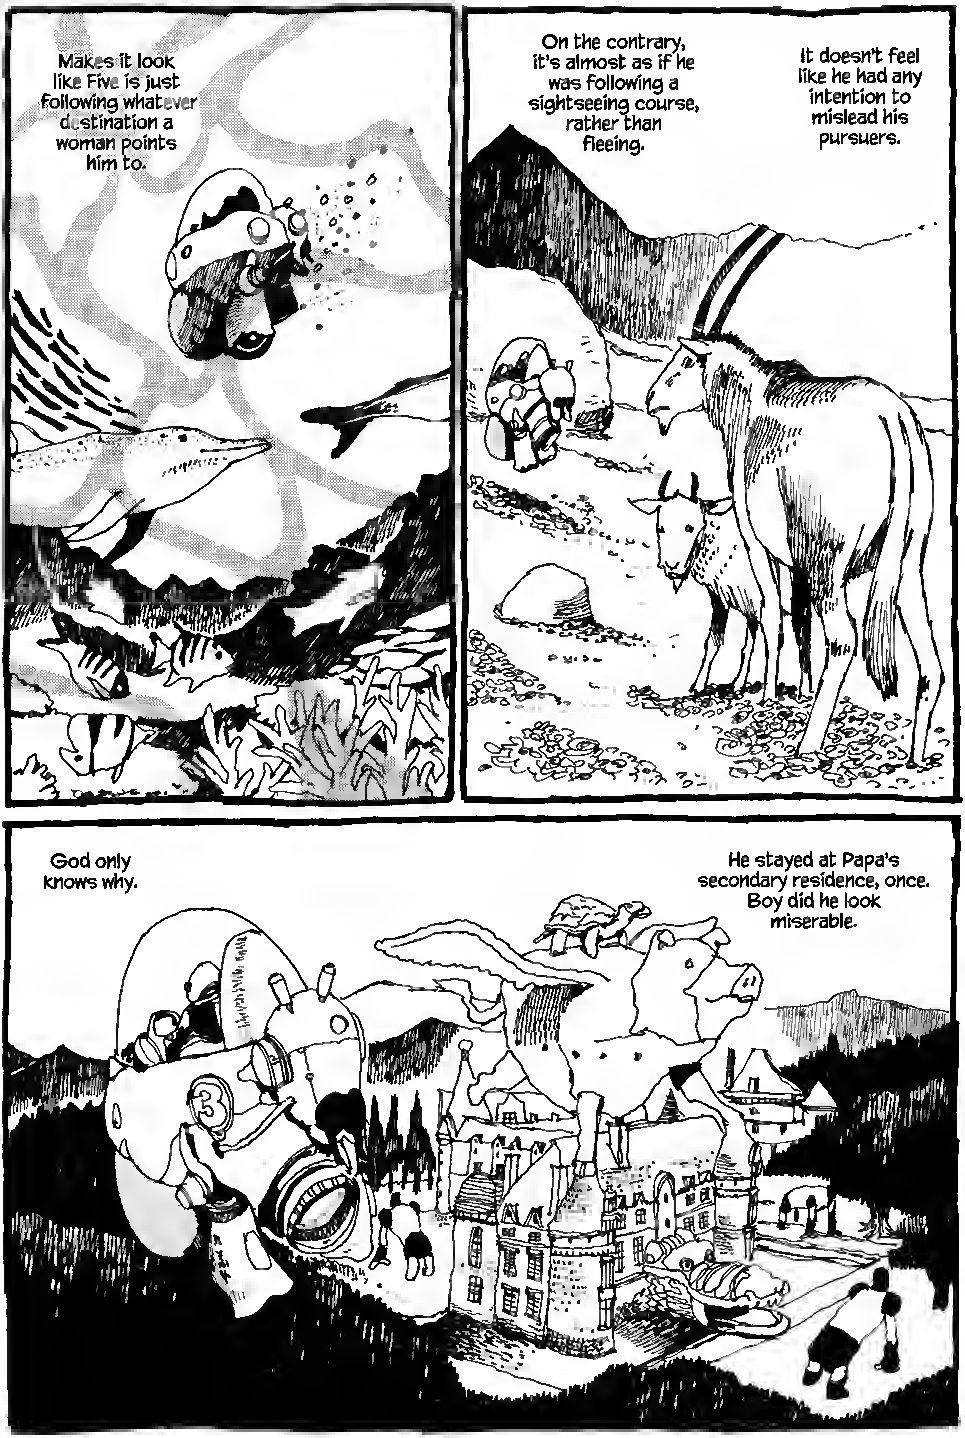
Time elapsed since the beginning of the Number Five chase: 124 hours, 46 minutes, 51 seconds.
June 6th; 1:30 pm. Temperature 38°C. Humidity 21%. Clear weather.



Following up on the places where his feelings have been perceived.



but I want to believe it might help give me some insight into his mentality.
I'm wondering if this detour is not just a waste of time



Makes it look like Five is just following whatever destination a woman points him to.
On the contrary, it's almost as if he was following a sightseeing course, rather than fleeing.
It doesn't feel like he had any intention to mislead his pursuers.
God only knows why.
He stayed at Papa's secondary residence, once. Boy did he look miserable.

Five's profound feelings of grief have fallen upon this place.

What is it?
Viktor, who was able to accomplish those things all by himself.
We have Five and his sense of loss, for having his woman stolen from him. One's anger at Four's death.
There's this sentiment, that is hard to describe.

He's one of those heroes from that squad the army created.
